Gratitude in Action: How Camp Changes Lives, Thanks to You

Thank you, parents and donors. Since stepping into the CEO role in January 2024, I've been continually inspired by the profound impact our camps have on young people. One returning staff member, who had worked at several other camps before coming back to Hayo-Went-Ha, said it best: "Our camps are the best around because our fun shows up in our challenges." This first story of purposeful adventure stayed with me, and the stories have continued to unfold.

The moments I've witnessed firsthand, along with the reflections I've heard from campers, staff, and alumni, have reaffirmed our mission and helped shape what we now call Pathways to Growth – a progressive journey where each adventure is rooted in meaningful outdoor challenge and experience. Every lesson is taught in the most powerful classroom we know – nature.

Thank you for supporting our amazing kids, whether you encouraged them to take on a new adventure, helped them pack for camp, or simply believed in the lifelong value of what we do. And to our donors, your generosity has helped make this experience possible for more than 130 campers this summer alone. In the field, growth is not something that just happens. It is discovered. It is earned. And it is deeply felt. The magic of Hayo-Went-Ha Camps is made possible because of your belief and commitment to helping young people grow in this environment.

I also want to share a heartfelt thank you to my son, Connor Carlson, who grew up attending my old stomping grounds, YMCA Camp Copneconic, in Fenton, MI, and now runs his own outdoor videography company. This past week, Connor joined me to help capture on video the breathtaking beauty and powerful camper stories from our journey to Killarney Provincial Park in Canada. One camper described the trip to Connor as "life-changing," and it's easy to understand why. With miles of canoe trekking with friends, crystal-clear waterways, and the stunning rock ridges of Killarney as a backdrop, our campers were immersed in some of the most awe-inspiring wilderness North America has to offer.

Connor will be putting together videos that tell the amazing story of our camps, highlighting not only the unforgettable adventures but also the deep personal growth these experiences spark in our youth. I can't wait for you all to see the magic he captured.

Thank you for being unplugged! Spending afternoons with both the girls and the boys, I was moved by the genuine authenticity of their friendships. There were no phones or distractions, just laughter, stories, songs, and the kind of shared challenges that forge lasting bonds.

I loved watching the girls sing together during the final canoe stretch of their journey, when the end felt both distant and within reach. I smiled as the boys compared their cliff-jumping style points, safely facilitated of course, and felt proud of all they had accomplished, both on the trail and on the water.

More than anything, I was struck by the strong sense of camaraderie that had blossomed among all of them. None of the campers wanted the experience to end. They didn't want to lose their connection to nature or to one another.

But as they boarded the van or bus home, they carried with them something that will stay for years to come: resilience, teamwork, and a deep comfort with discomfort, shaped by the unforgettable adventure they shared in the wilderness.

At the end of our time together, I asked each camper to do one thing when they got home: thank your parents or whoever made it possible for you to come to camp. Because this was not just a trip. It was a life experience that will shape who they are for years to come.

As we look ahead, we are excited to share drone and video footage and photos from Killarney as we launch our 2026 programs. Registration opens Sunday, October 19, which fittingly falls on World Friendship Day, a perfect reflection of what these experiences are all about.

From the bottom of my heart, THANK YOU for an amazing Summer of 2025 – to our campers, to the parents who send them, and to the donors who believe in them. You are not just supporting camp. You are shaping futures.

Mission Momentum

50 Miles. 5 Days. One Big Campership Goal.

Have you or your camper ever hiked one of the beautiful trails in Northern Michigan? It's not just a hike, it's classic camp. It's sore shoulders and trail mix lunches, stories shared around a campsite, star gazing and the kind of laughter that happens when you've spent all day walking with your favorite crew.

For generations, trips like these have been a highlight of the Hayo-Went-Ha Camps experience, a challenge, an adventure, and for many, a defining moment of summer. The fun shows up in our challenge. This fall, we're heading back to the trail with a challenge and that is to hike 50 miles in 5 days and raise $15,000 for the Campership Fund. Because we believe every camper deserves the chance to discover what they're capable of on a trail.

We've pulled together a group of determined alumni and staff, people who know the power of a shared hike, a soggy sock, a view that takes your breath away, and a trail that teaches resilience. They'll take on the miles, and we're asking you to help fuel the mission.

Here's how you can be part of it:

- Support a Team: Visit the campaign page and cheer on your favorite hikers with a donation. Join a team and help that team raise the goal of $1,875.
- Spread the Word: Rally your old cabin group, trail buddies, and fellow alumni and friends. Send the link, share the love, and get others involved.
- Give What You Can: Every gift, big or small, brings another camper closer to trailhead, and to the experience of a lifetime.

This is more than a fundraiser. It's a celebration of camp values, a way to give back, and a chance to help someone else discover what's waiting for them on Michigan's most stunning shoreline.

Thank you for walking with us, step by step, story by story, camper by camper.

We're excited to officially launch something that's been years in the making, a dedicated space where the legacy of Hayo-Went-Ha Camps comes to life through stories, friendships, and shared memories. Just in time for National Friendship Day on August 3rd, our brand-new interactive alumni community platform is now live and ready for you to explore!

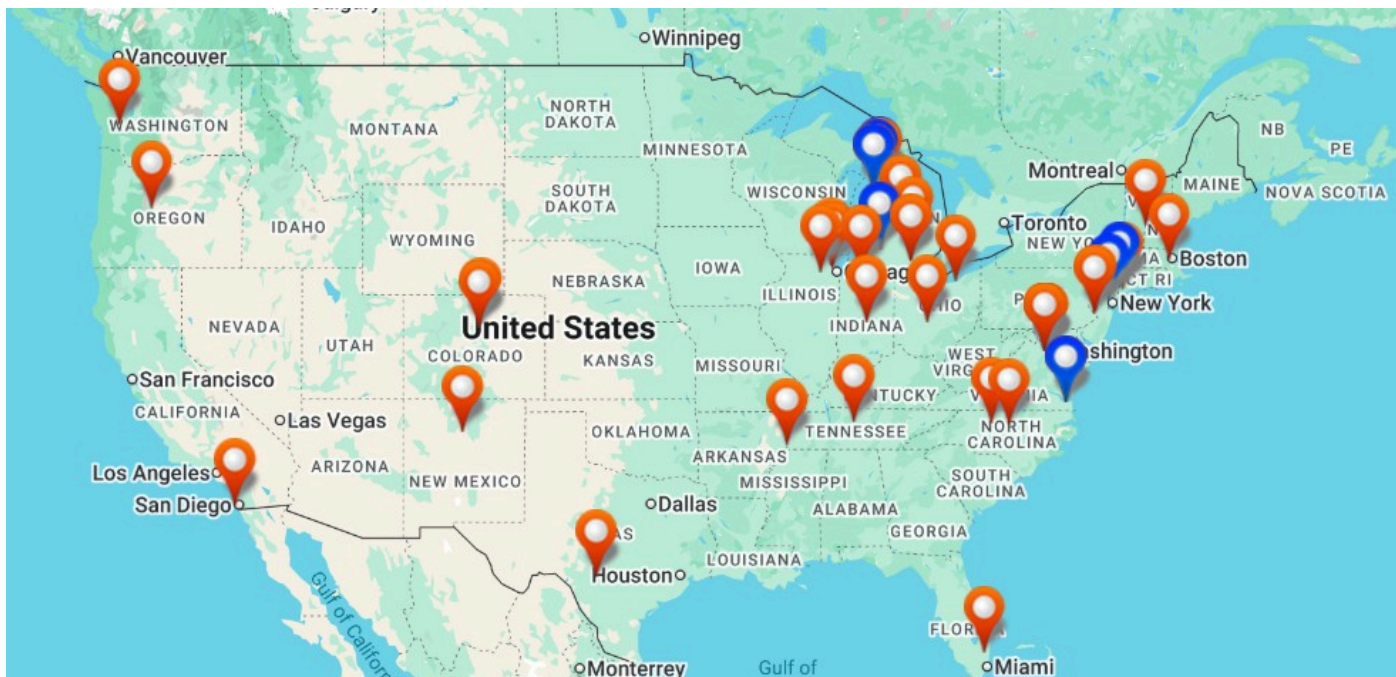

This is more than a database. It's a digital campfire, an evolving space where you can:

- Click here and create your own profile and tell your camp story
- Search for old friends from across generations and geography
- Join or start groups based on cabins, decades, trips, or shared memories
- Share photos, favorite moments, and camp traditions

Torch Talk

By Adam Delezenne, Torch Lake Camp Director

Camp is Working!

Camp gives us a lot to get caught up in — endless details, the drama of counselor and cabin life, expeditions departing, arriving, and heading out again. It's easy to miss the bigger picture — that we're all working hard to create incredible experiences for campers.

And it is working! In the latest round of camper evaluations, we asked campers not only if they were having fun and how good the food was, but also about things like who had shown them empathy while they were at camp, if they gave something hard or challenging a try, and if they felt welcomed. In Session 1, 93% of campers said that someone showed them kindness or empathy, listing simple things, friendships made, and simple moments in the cabin. 70% said they did something challenging, most listed the zip line as the most challenging part of their experience, some also talked about the trip, or aspects of communal life together. 97% said that they felt welcomed and talked about the excitement of those who greeted them when they arrived. And 85% said that they felt more confident than when they arrived at camp. One camper mentioned regaining his confidence in sailing, while another mentioned learning to respect the opinions of others.

And now we are near the end! Camp is working, campers are having a great time, and lives are being changed.

Rooted in Tradition: When Camp Becomes a Family Tree

One thing that many people know about camp is that it's not just for a couple of years, camp is for life. For some, that means sending their children and their grandchildren to camp as well, or nieces and nephews, family friends, the list goes on!

This summer we're blessed to have campers on site that are children of two of our 1998 LC group and the reason that is so special is because this was the same group that built the chapel that stands at camp today, named after our historic Green Chapel that has been around for years of Arbutus campers.

One of these campers, Sarah, actually was a member of the group that wrote and planned the chapel, which centered around trees, the themes of growth, connectedness, and strength coming out in full play — legitimately one of the most fun LC chapel themes I've seen in recent years!

These two parents were so excited to be sending their children to camp together — the first two of their generation to do so. We hold camp so dear here at both Torch and Arbutus, that being able to pass along the love for the place and the traditions here is a special opportunity indeed. Having been around for 111 years gives us the special opportunity to have generations of families make this place what it is today, a home for all of those near and far! These are the families that help us keep our traditions alive at camp — while we love innovation and new ideas there is something to the notion of children singing the same "Arbutus Moon" song at camp that their mothers sang here at camp before them.

While we were not able to get the exact photo of Sarah and Izzy's moms pulling this same pose back in '98, we do have other fun memories from their years together as campers.

Grounds for Discussion

By Scott Swanson, Building and Grounds Director

Summer Sounds, New Sights, and Evolving Spaces

I'm starting this section with mixed feelings about the bathhouse update. Although they won't be ready in time for our 2025 campers, the GREAT NEWS is that the bathhouses are nearing completion and already look more beautiful than I had envisioned. Thanks to some creative brainstorming with our builder, Chris Richter from Richter Construction Inc., I think we are really taking our facilities to another level. Rather than treating the bathhouse as a shell covering the toilets and showers, we've created a practical and functional building for our campers – and one that's easier to clean, repair, and maintain. I also believe it gives a classic feel with so many little details that give it that premier touch. So yeah, mixed feelings. In the end, I know we've created a shift in expectation and quality. This will be our new normal.

These last few weeks of camp, we were able to spruce up the waterfront at Arbutus and get our new water toys installed. I have definitely noticed a much louder waterfront since the installation, which really makes me smile. The sounds and noises the summer brings to camp are exciting, inspiring, and sometimes a little stressful, but still great. I'm thinking of canoe trailers, dining hall chatter, waterfront shrills, and laughter to name just a few. It is definitely a motivation to keep going and pushing to improve the product we deliver to these kids and our staff. It seems Ryan Lautner, our new Maintenance Director, has been a good fit for this camp and the staff. He often comments to me that he loves his job, and that feels good.

Camp has just a week left as I type this up, and it's hard to believe it's almost over. During camp, it's easier to know what to do every day – make sure the campers are safe and have everything they need to achieve "Happy Camper" status. Once they leave, it can be a windfall of projects as the wear and tear of the season becomes evident. This season it will be nice to have a team that is working together to achieve some of our bigger projects. I know this will show itself to create more actual work getting done at both camps, and that's exciting to me.

In closing, I would love to share again how much these two camps are treasures. It's only been just over two years for me and I feel it. I get to see some of the most beautiful places at some of the most peaceful and ruckus times, and I'm thankful. This job has its own stresses, aches, and pains, but the land on and surrounding these camps is unique and very special; it seems to incite reflection and appreciation. Thanks for taking the time to check in with us at YMCA Hayo-Went-Ha Camps.

Camp Food and Fun

By Renee Dewindt, HWH Camps Food Service Director

A Meal, A Celebration, and a Whole Lot of Fun

One of the most fun parts of the summer so far was helping JC pull off his auction item, a four-course meal for the highest bidder. There was some serious competition among staff, but in the end, the AHWH first-session Alaska cabin won the bid.

After they returned from their trip, JC and I put together a special brunch just for them. We squeezed fresh orange juice, brought in real bagels from Bubba Bagel in Traverse City (not camp bagels!), and laid out a spread of cream cheese options. JC served every course with a big smile, and the campers were absolutely thrilled. It was such a fun way to welcome them back and celebrate their time on trail.

I always try to do something special for our older campers when they return from trips. For Alaska, I made Baked Alaska (of course!). Killarney gets Canadian Goose Poop — my version of crème brûlée with mini butterscotch chips. Isle Royale gets Moose Poop — chocolate mousse made from scratch, and one of my favorites to make. And this year, we added something new for the sailors: Banana Boats. It was the perfect welcome back for that group, and a fun little nod to their time on the water.

I love these moments, when food becomes part of the story they'll remember about camp. It's a joy to celebrate their hard work, their spirit, and their adventures with something delicious. It's one of the many reasons I love what I do here.

From Trails to Peaks

Blazing Trails & Riding Currents: The First Rovers Adventure

We wanted to find a two-week option to offer our 9th graders that had the perfect blend of in the field vs time at camp, and to spice it up we took a hybrid approach. We also wanted to utilize our beautiful local trails.

Our first ever Rovers at Hayo-Went-Ha Camps hailed from the Torch site. They set out on July 17th and jumped on the North Country Trail, they hiked 25 miles in three days. On the third day, the North Country Trail intercepted the Manistee. I met up with the crew to drop off their canoes as they transitioned from hiking boots to paddles.

The weather was a bit dreary, but spirits were high. The group had a fire going, was warm and dry, and buzzing with excitement to trade miles on foot for time on the river. The second part of the trip would be 18.5 hours total of paddle time over four days.

Alumni Spotlight

By Hadley Robinson, Alumni Committee Chair

Betsy (deFries) Craske Camp era: 1995-2004

Camp influences our lives in so many ways — what people choose to study in school, what jobs they pick, but also how they center relationships and prioritize community. Betsy (deFries) Craske embodies all of this in more. We spoke about finding a school community that felt like camp, and what it's like to currently be running for local office.

Q: Tell us a little bit about your career and what you do day to day.

A: My love of camp and the outdoors led me to Montana in 2003 for college where I studied Environmental Studies and focused on sustainable agriculture and outdoor education. This led me to many jobs, including summers building trails in National Parks on trail crews, but most recently I was a teacher for 10 years at a small, progressive school in Missoula, Montana. If I could create a school that felt like summer camp, this would be as close as I could get. The first day of school had teachers and students playing instruments and singing songs in the courtyard. We went on outdoor trips to go rock climbing, kayaking, and biking. Students had choice in their learning ala camp afternoon choice time. Like camp, it was a group of people who supported one another's learning and growth through time spent outside and in community with one another. I taught science and math there and managed the outdoor program, and it was a profound and meaningful experience to hold the responsibility of educating our next generation of leaders. My students continue to inspire me in endless ways, and I am so grateful for my time teaching. (At one point AHW Alum Liz Berliant and I had a pen pal program between our students — keeping letter writing and camp connections alive!)

I made the difficult decision to leave my teaching job at the end of the 2023-2024 school year so I could spend more time with my daughter (who is now 4 and can't wait to be a camp kid) and spend more time investing in my community. Depending on the season you can find me coaching youth sports, volunteering for different local nonprofits, and getting outside with friends and family on bikes, skis, or rafts.

Q: You recently decided to run for local office in your community of Missoula, Montana. What inspired you to do this, and what has it been like?

A: After transitioning from my teaching job, I decided to take time to really be more involved on a broader scale in my community. Last fall I became involved in the local and national elections and spent time canvassing in neighborhoods to support candidates and encourage folks to get out and vote. I really believe that if you want to make a difference, you need to work in your local community to be a catalyst, and this led me to exploring the idea of running for a seat on Missoula's City Council. Before canvassing for the 2024 elections, I was terrified to knock on doors, and now here I am knocking on doors as a candidate! It has been a HUGE learning experience!

Some of the best parts are the conversations I get to have with folks all over town. We get to dive into how to address the housing crisis, how to advocate for climate solutions, and our hopes and dreams for this place we all love. I am developing a more comprehensive picture of the challenges our city faces and the people and places that make it tick. I am getting a crash course in marketing, branding, grassroots organizing, and putting myself out there even if it feels uncomfortable. I really look forward to collaborating with other organizations, city officials, and passionate people in Missoula to help make our city a more inclusive, vibrant place to live now and for future generations. (If you're curious about my campaign, you can find me over at www.craskeforcouncil.com)

Q: How has camp influenced your work?

A: Perhaps a more succinct answer might come from the question "how has camp NOT influenced my work?"! As a kid and teen, camp provided a safe place for me to explore, learn, and grow, and this gave me confidence in who I am and who I could be.

My deep love of and passion for the outdoors certainly came from my experiences on trips and living at camp for six to 10 weeks every summer. My time spent in the field of conservation came from the feeling that I wanted to give back to the wild places that had given me so much on trips.

The emphasis on relationship building through a decade at camp helped me put relationships at the heart of my teaching work and now my political work. We need relationships with one another to get things done, and this focus on relationships through my experiences at camp has helped me connect with people from all walks of life. I think the support you feel as part of the camp community really teaches you how to show up for and try to create the community you want to see in the world.

The challenges of daily living and trip life gave me confidence that has been instrumental as I take on new leadership roles. If you can get through a 3 km canoe portage with two weeks of food and heavy canoes, you can certainly get through a challenging meeting! It is safe to say that I wouldn't be who I am today or be doing what I'm doing today without camp in my life. I am deeply grateful for my experiences at camp informing my work today and grateful to get to foster deep, meaningful relationships through camp. AND, camp taught me that you can't take things too seriously — always make time to bust out some dance moves, sing at the top of your lungs or jump in a body of water!

Q: Do you have a favorite camp memory you could share?

A: When I think of camp, I first and foremost see the smiling faces of so many I know and love. Hearing wolves howling under the stars while backpacking on Isle Royale, Killarney portages, Casino Night dance parties, Teddy Bear swims, Nejee dock chats, singing all the songs, the thrill of mail and packages, jumping off a sailboat into deep blue Caribbean waters, being a counselor to my first cabin of campers, candle wax covering everything after a closing campfire — these memories and so many more all bring a smile to my face. I think most of all, just the memory of walking down the paths and running through the woods alongside Arbutus Lake brings me quiet and calm and peace on the busiest of days. How lucky are we to have all been a part of it at one point or another?

Generational Gems

Carrying the Torch: The Miller Family's Camp Legacy Continues

Elise Miller Rolison is proudly watching a third generation of her family fall in love with camp. Her son Owen, registered as a Day Camper starting August 4th, is following in the footsteps of his grandfather, who spent many summers at Hayo-Went-Ha — including his LC year. Last summer, Owen attended the Alumni Weekend and was instantly hooked. "He had such a great time," Elise shared. "He can't wait to come back for day camp, and eventually transition to overnight camp when he's old enough."

Owen won't be attending alone. He'll be joined by two of his cousins, the oldest kids of Elise's twin brother. "My dad has five grandsons," she said, "so we're working on building up the Miller family footprint at camp!"

The family plans to spend two weeks near Torch Lake this summer, and Elise is hoping to reconnect even more deeply by volunteering at Arbutus Hayo-Went-Ha while they're in the area. "I'd be happy to share more of our family's camp story," she offered. And we're grateful she will.

It's stories like these that remind us how strong the Hayo-Went-Ha Camps legacy runs, and how special it is when new generations begin writing their own chapter.

Neighbors at the Fire: A New Tradition Begins at Camp

Learning S'more with Our Neighbors

This summer, both camps hosted something new and we called it the "Learn S'more About Camp," an evening created to bring together our neighbors and local community for food, conversation, and a behind-the-scenes look at camp life.

At Arbutus Hayo-Went-Ha, we welcomed 17 neighbors to join us for dinner and dessert. At Torch Hayo-Went-Ha, we were thrilled to host nearly 40 guests in our historic Old Dining Hall overlooking Torch Lake. For many, it was their first time setting foot on camp properties, with several sharing they'd spent years wondering about the fun they'd seen from the water.

After dinner, guests took guided tours of camp, met with staff and leadership, and had the opportunity to hear from our CEO about both camp's legacy and its future. The evening was filled with great stories, thoughtful questions, and new connections between camp and our wider community. Based on the overwhelmingly positive feedback, we hope to make this an annual tradition.

If you missed this year's gathering, we'd love to welcome you next time. There's always room at the campfire.

Hayo-Went-Ha Camps Happenings

Celebrate Summer with Us at the Friends of Hayo-Went-Ha Camps Gathering

Each July, as our Board of Directors comes together in Northern Michigan, we open the doors to our extended camp family for an annual celebration of connection and community. It's more than a meeting, it's a reunion, a tradition, and a great excuse to gather with old friends (and meet a few new ones). Over 50 camp friends joined us!

This summer, we welcomed alumni, families, and friends to the Friends of Hayo-Went-Ha Camps Summer Gathering at Short's Brewing Co. in Elk Rapids. With camp stories in the air and the hum of live music in the background, it was a chance to share memories, hear updates from our board and staff, and feel that spark of camp camaraderie, whether you live in the area year-round, spend your summers nearby, or just happened to be passing through.

Thank you to everyone who joined us to keep the spirit of HWH Camps alive and thriving. If you missed it this year, don't worry, we hope to see you next summer as this gathering continues to grow. After all, once you're part of Hayo-Went-Ha, you're always a part of the camp family.

Hayo-Went-Ha Camps' First-Ever Homecoming Brought Camp Spirit to Elk Rapids

This summer, we launched a new tradition, and it was a hit. Our first-ever HWH Camps Homecoming took place on June 15th and again on July 13th, at the Short's Pull Barn in Elk Rapids, and more than 50 alumni, current families, and friends gathered to celebrate all things camp.

Timed with the start of each four-week session drop-off, the casual afternoon gathering created a perfect opportunity for parents to swing by after saying goodbye to their campers and for alumni in the area to reconnect with familiar faces. The event was full of classic camp energy, and we even had friendly games, and plenty of storytelling.

With such a strong turnout and positive feedback, we're already thinking about making this a yearly tradition. Thank you to everyone who came out and helped make our first Homecoming one to remember! Mark your calendars for next year — June 14th and July 12th.

The winner of the "Guess the Petoskey stone" competition is Luaren Cardella, who successfully guessed 106 stones, all collected from the Torch Lake Point! She will be receiving a camp hoodie for her winning guess. Thank you for all the great guesses!

LCs Lead the Way in Keeping Torch Lake Beautiful

On Sunday, July 6, at 6:00 PM, the shores of Torch Lake saw a different kind of gathering, one focused on stewardship, service, and community pride. Campers from both Arbutus and Torch Hayo-Went-Ha's LC (Leadership Camper) programs came together to join Stand Up for the Great Lakes crew to help clean up the popular sandbar area, joining forces for an evening dedicated to keeping our local environment beautiful.

The LCs and other volunteers received bags and supplies to collect trash and other debris left behind along the shoreline and in the water. It is a simple idea, but one with a lasting impact. The event offered a meaningful opportunity for our LCs to demonstrate leadership beyond camp property. They represented Hayo-Went-Ha Camps with care, responsibility, and enthusiasm, living out the values they've been building all summer long.

We're proud of our LCs for stepping up and giving back, and we're grateful to everyone who showed up to lend a hand. Together, we helped protect the lake we all love and use every summer, and we hope to continue this effort for years to come.

August 10th is #NationalSmoresDay

National S'mores Day on August 10 recognizes the most popular campfire treat! Millions of people of all ages love this gooey, toasted treat.

S'mores consist of a roasted marshmallow with a layer of chocolate bar sandwiched between two pieces of graham cracker. (The Hayo-Went-Ha Camps way is to put the chocolate pieces in the marshmallow where the stick was removed for an extra gooey fun!)

The origin of this tasty snack is credited to the entrepreneur Alec Barnum. However, the first recorded version of the recipe can be found in the 1927 publication of Tramping and Trailing with the Girl Scouts. Even though the Girl Scouts were not the first ones to make s'mores, Girl Scout groups describe them in their reports as early as 1925. Earlier recipes used the name "Some Mores." It is unclear when the word "S'mores" became the more common name.
