Musings and Meanderings...

By John (JC) Carlson, CEO

"Each for All — All for Each"

The Heart of Hayo-Went-Ha Camps

At YMCA Hayo-Went-Ha Camps, we often talk about tradition, character, and community. One phrase that captures the essence of all three is our cherished motto: "Each for All – All for Each." These simple words carry deep meaning and serve as a daily reminder of the values we strive to live by at camp.

"Each for All" speaks to the responsibility each person has to the group. Whether it's campers encouraging a nervous friend before a high ropes challenge or a trip group working together to carry the load during a long portage, this part of the motto reminds us that camp life works best when we show up for each other. It's about stepping up, pitching in, and putting the needs of the community ahead of our own comfort. Because every act of kindness and every small effort helps create something greater than ourselves.

"All for Each," in turn, reflects the unwavering support of the community for every individual. At Hayo-Went-Ha Camps, no one is left behind or overlooked. From the youngest camper to the most seasoned counselor, everyone belongs. This is a place where differences are celebrated, voices are heard, and everyone is lifted by the strength of the group. It's in the cabin laughter after a rainy day, in the encouragement shouted from the lake shore, and in the quiet conversations by the campfire when someone needs a friend.

Together, "Each for All – All for Each" is not just a motto, but a living practice. It shapes how we lead, how we learn, and how we grow. It's present in our traditions, in the way we handle challenges, and in the lifelong friendships formed beneath the northern Michigan pines.

At Hayo-Went-Ha Camps, this spirit doesn't fade when summer ends, it stays with us, reminding us to be thoughtful leaders and compassionate teammates in the world beyond camp. Because once you've experienced a community where everyone truly looks out for one another, you carry that with you always.

Pictured on the right is Bill Doyle, a long-standing member of the Hayo-Went-Ha Camps family whose deep connection to the camp spans decades. Bill generously traveled from Virginia Beach, VA, to be part of our staff training this year, carrying forward the camp songs and stories that have echoed across generations. His presence, is a reminder of how tradition lives on, not just through memory, but through action.

Then there is Jim Austin, alumni extraordinaire, who continues to be a cornerstone of our community connections. He returns without fail for every opening and closing campfire, and, truthfully, whenever we ask, offering his time, voice, and heart to preserve the magic and meaning of Hayo-Went-Ha Camps' most sacred moments. His commitment is unwavering, and we are endlessly grateful.

Other notable alumni to mention are Skip Clark and Brad Semmens, who have selflessly helped us set up and build our sailing program this summer. Also out of the block, stepping up to support our campership campaign so no child is denied the chance to come to camp is Rick Block with a matching opportunity to support our Summer Dreams and Equipment Drive.

At Camp Arbutus Hayo-Went-Ha, alumni Nicole Jarred joined our opening campfire after dropping off her camper, stepping in with warmth and enthusiasm to lead cherished songs from summers past. With her voice and joy, she helped today's campers connect with the generations who came before them, keeping traditions alive not as relics, but as living, breathing moments.

At times, it feels like a campfire thank-you speech, trying to name every person who gives so selflessly. But those who live "Each for All – All for Each" aren't looking for recognition. They give because it's simply who they are. It's because they believe in this camp, in its spirit, and in its enduring legacy.

So, thank you, truly, to our community. For showing up. For singing out. For keeping the flame alive.

Camp's Impact on Your Future

College essays are always worth thinking about early — especially when it comes to finding a story that's personal and meaningful. Camp experiences can be a powerful foundation for a strong essay.

Here's a great example from Eliza Upton, whose time at camp helped shape a college essay that really stood out. Thank you for sharing, Eliza.

Describe a place or environment where you are perfectly content. What do you do or experience there, and why is it meaningful to you?

The place where I am most content not only offers space to rest tired muscles, but it also brings me emotional peace and happiness. The Big Blue Bus is not just magnificent because of the alliteration appeal in its name. The old school bus painted blue that transports the girls of Camp Arbutus-Hayo-Went-Ha in Northern Michigan every summer has deep meaning for me.

Camp is my favorite place in the world. There in the pine tree-studded woods, I return every summer where I greet old friends for whom my heart aches 11 months of the year, and where I meet new friends who will soon earn a place in my most loving muscle. The Big Blue Bus has also earned a spot there.

As the vehicle that transports us to extended camping trips and welcomes us back, the Big Blue Bus marks the beginning and the end to many adventures. The bus is the last piece of camp we see before launching ourselves into the unfamiliar woods of Isle Royale, the cliffs of the Pictured Rocks on Lake Superior, the lakes of Canada, or the airport that leads to Alaska. After challenging days or weeks spent exploring those woods, cliffs, and waters, the bus greets our weary limbs and hungry stomachs, signifying the bittersweet end of an adventure and the warm welcome home.

I not only know and appreciate what the bus signifies, I also know the bus itself. For me nothing is more familiar and amiable. I know the bus's worn blue leather seats and the best way to position my body for the optimal nap. I know the static radio and the channels with the best reception. I know that our driver Joe is in a good mood when I can see his mouth in the rearview mirror dancing along with the lyrics of a Dave Matthews Band song. I know that on a hot day I can slide the windows down to welcome a breeze and give Joe's dog Sadie a chance to dangle her head and tongue out the window. Most importantly, I know that when I am on this bus I am surrounded by best friends, with whom I can laugh, cry or sit quietly with. I can be myself.

On the Big Blue Bus, I can be alone with my thoughts, but I am never lonely. And while my thoughts can touch on any subject, I never worry when I'm on the bus. Maybe it's the old leather, the forward motion or the familiar faces around me, but I am immune to all stress or potential problems. My mind is clear.

The trips back on the Big Blue Bus hold many rewards. I can always count on the first rows of seats being filled with care packages and letters. After weeks of eating dried fruit and dehydrated pasta, hiking 120 miles of trails on Isle Royale, biking 200 miles across Michigan's Upper Peninsula, or kayaking in the cold sea channels of Alaska, there is nothing more enjoyable than indulging in a chewy brownie sent from a caring family member.

These bus rides always make me feel loved. I know that when the Big Blue Bus rolls down the long dirt driveway and pulls up in front of the camp lodge, our fellow campers will be screaming and cheering us in, offering a loving welcome home and congratulations. Stepping off of the bus into suffocating hugs have been among the most joyous moments of my life.

Every bus ride that holds the promise of unknown adventures and every return that welcomes me home have been the same: full of love, friends, rest, music and excitement. For that, I am comfortable, content, and grateful.

Get on the bus with us...

Have you ever seen the camp bus roll by or heard the laughter and singing as cabin groups return from their wilderness trips? That bus holds more than campers — it carries generations of memories and a spirit we all remember.

As we begin planning this year's Keepers of the Flame campaign, we're gathering the spark to build something big. This initiative is the launchpad for raising support toward the "big rocks" that will shape camp's future — from facility upgrades to major program enhancements.

We're looking for alumni across the decades to join us. Would you like to be a team leader? Team leaders will rally their friends, share updates filled with camp connections and history, and help spread the excitement. You'll be part of a spirited effort to reconnect, celebrate what camp has given us, and ensure it continues to thrive for the next generation.

The response in the past has been incredible — so many alumni stepping up to help camp continue to grow. If you're ready to lend your energy and voice to the cause, now is the time.

If you're interested, please reach out to Amanda - amacaluso@hayowentha.org or JC - jcarlson@hayowentha.org for more information.

Let's keep the flame burning — and keep the bus rolling.

Torch Talk/Arbutus Angle

International Staff Bring the World to Camp

At HWH Camps, hiring international staff has been a tradition for as long as we can remember. We take pride in the diversity they bring to our community and the global perspectives they share with our campers.

There's no better way — short of international travel — for campers to learn about different cultures than by living and working alongside someone from another part of the world. These staff members bring unique stories, traditions, and viewpoints that enrich the camp experience in meaningful ways.

Their commitment is no small thing. International staff take on the cost, time, and travel required to be here, often from halfway around the globe. We're especially proud that several of them have chosen to return for a third summer or more — proof of the strong connections and shared purpose they've found at HWH Camps.

Their presence helps make camp more vibrant, more inclusive, and more connected to the world beyond Torch and Arbutus Lakes. We're grateful for all they bring and the example they set every day.

Stagg / Squire Family History

Matt Squire has returned for his third summer from Shrewsbury, England and is currently leading the Torch Lake site's Alaska expedition. His connection to Hayo-Went-Ha Camps runs deep — his mother, Julie, worked at the girls camp back in 1995, introducing Matt to the magic of camp from an early age.

Here's what Julie shared about her experience and what it means to see her son follow in her footsteps:

I was on staff at Bow's Lake in 1995. My co-counsellors were Terri Erickson (Pictured Rocks) and Kirsten McDonnell (Isle Royale). My son (Matt Squire) has been on staff: 2023, 2024 and 2025. My daughter (Annie Squire) volunteered in 2024.

The summer of 1995 at Bow's Lake will always be one of the best times of my life. As a naive 20 year old, I was employed by Pat Rode to be part of an amazing group of strong and bold women, paving the way for an evolving girl's camp. That glorious summer, I made lifelong friends and forged a new (camp) family. Camp defined me; camp moulded me; camp made me. Without my Bow's Lake experience, I would never have considered teaching as a career. Yet, here I am, 30 years later, having enjoyed a fulfilling career in the UK education system. This summer, my son (Matt Squire) is back at Torch for a third summer. Like me, he has found his tribe at HWH, living his absolute best life and growing every day. It was wonderful to have Matthew follow in my footsteps, last year, with his own adventures on Isle Royale; it felt like a full-circle moment, with him exploring the same tracks and trails that I had all those years ago. When he sends me photo updates of his trips — Alaska this year — it takes me back to happy times of fun, laughter, and freedom.

Camp friends are the best — it's a fact!

Grimm Family History

Linde is back for her third summer on staff at the Arbutus Lake location, and her connection to Hayo-Went-Ha Camps runs deep. Her dad worked at camp in 1993 and 1994 at the Torch Lake location. Growing up hearing camp stories, camp quickly became more than just a summer job — it became part of her story too.

Here's what Linde shared as she reflects on why she returns year after year, and what it means to carry on the legacy of camp in her own way.

"A lot of returning staff members have their answer ready when they are asked why they come back each summer; to see the growth in campers, the bonds they've made with friends, the trips that challenge them. I've never really been able to put it so eloquently. For me there is just a strong urge to return to this place every time I have to leave it.

Even though I might not have the best words for it, I do know something that describes the feeling better than I ever could. A song very dear to my heart; The Piney Wood Hills."

*I'm a rambler and a rover
And a wanderer it seems
I've traveled all over
Chasing after my dreams
But a dream should come true
And a heart should be filled
And a life should be lived
In the piney wood hills*

*I'll return to the woodlands
I'll return to the shore
I'll return to the hills
And the valley below
I'll return like a poor man
Or a king if God wills
But I'm on my way home
To my piney wood hills*

*I was raised on a song there
I done right I done wrong there
And it's true I belong there
And it's true it's my home*

*From ocean to ocean
I've rambled and roamed
And soon I'll return
To my piney wood home
Maybe someday I'll find Someone who will
Love as I love my piney wood hills*

How Bastiaan Feels About His Family Camp Legacy

It was never a plan of mine to go work at a summer camp in America. When I was 19, I tagged along with a friend to a Camp America fair in Amsterdam. By pure chance, Pat Rode struck up a conversation with me there — and that encounter led to the summer of 1994 and, ultimately, more than 18 months working as a cook, first at the boys' camp and later also at the girls' camp.

My only kitchen experience at that point was a student job in a Mexican restaurant, but apparently, that was enough to get me up to speed with cooking for large groups. At least — I never received any complaints, and by now, the statute of limitations has expired ;-)

I could share plenty of stories, but to keep things on topic: my younger brother Thomas came over as a camper for two summers. Years later, our family took two month-long trips through the U.S. — on the second trip, my son Mees spent two weeks at boys' camp and my daughter Linde at girls' camp. My partner Nelja and I spent those weeks as "vacationing volunteers" at Arbutus, kindly hosted by Joe and Amanda.

After experiencing camp as a camper in 2016, this is already Linde's third summer working as a counselor at AHHW. And this year, Jesse — my brother's middle son — is also a counselor at the boys' camp.

I'll admit, I get teary-eyed just thinking about it and writing these few words. That probably says it all. Above all, I'm incredibly proud of my daughter — for all that she gives, and all that she receives in return. I'll be the first to introduce any future grandchildren to Torch Lake and/or Lake Arbutus.

Grounds for Discussion and Meals in Motion!

Meet the CCR and CFF Teams: A New Name, Same Big Impact

Behind the scenes at both camps, there are two essential teams who keep everything running smoothly — our kitchen and maintenance crews. This year, we're giving these hardworking staff groups fun new names that reflect both their spirit and their contributions.

Our maintenance staff are now known as the CCR Team, short for Camp Care and Repair. They're the ones who make sure everything from cabins to canoes is safe, functional, and ready for campers to enjoy. Whether they're fixing trails, hauling gear, or jumping in to help with unexpected needs, they're always moving with purpose.

Our kitchen staff are now called the CFF Team, which stands for Camp Food and Fun. They do so much more than prepare meals — they set the tone for community, joy, and nourishment at every mealtime. Their positive energy and commitment keep campers fueled and staff supported from sunrise to s'mores.

These playful new names make it easy to recognize the important role these teams play in camp life — and to celebrate the people who work tirelessly to make every day better.

So, the next time you see a CCR or CFF staffer, give them a high five. Camp wouldn't happen without them!

From Trails to Peaks

This summer, we launched an exciting new initiative called WILDER — Wilderness Institute of Leadership Development and Expedition Readiness. Built around backcountry safety, leadership, and decision-making, WILDER deepens our approach to wilderness trip preparation. It's about more than outdoor skills — it's about helping staff build the confidence and judgment they need to guide transformative experiences in nature.

Alongside WILDER, staff also earn nationally recognized certifications in Wilderness First Responder (WFR), Red Cross lifeguarding, CPR, and first aid.

Whether it's a blister three days into a trip, a scraped knee on the dock, or something more serious, our staff are ready. The WFR certification is especially critical for the remote, rugged environments our campers explore. It prepares our team to assess and respond when help is hours — or days — away.

We make these investments because we know that when families send their kids to camp, they're placing their trust in us. It's a responsibility we take seriously. Campers deserve to be guided by a team that's not only passionate and energetic but also deeply prepared.

Preparing for a Summer That Matters: Inside Staff Training at YMCA Hayo-Went-Ha Camps

You may not know this, but behind every smiling camper, every safe trip, and every unforgettable moment at Hayo-Went-Ha Camps, there's an incredible amount of preparation and care. From leadership development and safety certifications to waterfront planning, equipment checks, trail prep, and kitchen coordination, staff training touches every corner of camp life.

Nearly three weeks of intentional training have helped us deliver high-quality programs, maintain our beautiful spaces, and, most importantly, create an environment where kids can grow, thrive, and feel at home.

At YMCA Hayo-Went-Ha Camps, safety isn't just a checklist — it's the foundation of everything we do. Each summer kicks off with an immersive staff training experience designed to prepare our team for more than the daily routines of camp life. It equips them to lead with confidence, respond to challenges, and support campers in meaningful ways — whether they're on land, in the water, or deep in the backcountry.

To support that, we've strengthened our in-camp preparation, too. We've refined our leadership tracks and expanded hands-on sessions that cover everything from emergency protocols to inclusive cabin dynamics. These updates create clearer pathways for growth, giving staff the tools they need to return year after year as even stronger leaders.

As longtime trip instructor Dave Foley shared, "I'm really enjoying getting back to HWH Camps again this year. Teaching everyone the fundamentals of canoeing is a joy!"

Another new and impactful element this year was the addition of a parent panel during staff training. At both camps, several parents joined us to share what it's like to drop off a child for the summer — the emotions, the excitement, the nerves. Staff asked thoughtful questions, and parents offered real, heartfelt insight. It gave our team a deeper understanding of the trust families place in us and reminded them of the important role they play in helping campers feel safe and supported from day one.

And sending your child to camp is more than just signing up for a session — it's a powerful act of trust. By choosing us, you're showing that you believe in what we do and how we care for your child. That means the world to us.

Thank you for believing in the power of camp and supporting the work that happens before the first camper even steps off the bus. With your encouragement — and the incredible effort of our staff—we're ready for a summer filled with challenge, joy, and growth.

In one meal over 8 cases of garlic bread were consumed

In 36 hours staff assembled 1 huge canvas tent and 6 bunks

At the Arbutus Lake site there are 2 staff celebrating their 5th year at camp and 6 celebrating their 10th year — including our Camp Director MackMo.

Strength in Experience: the 2025 AD Staff Prepare to Lead

We all know that camp is only as strong as its staff — and our AD staff are a key reason each summer is a success. This dedicated group of returning staff oversee critical areas of camp, ensuring that programs run smoothly, campers are supported, and the spirit of camp shines through every day.

Each year, AD staff take part in a four-day training focused on leadership development, program management, and the specific responsibilities of their roles — from Division Leaders to Trip Directors to Program Leads. Many of them grew up at camp, and they bring that deep knowledge and passion with them as they guide the next generation.

This year is no different. For 2025, we've continued the tradition of combined AD staff training across both camps. These joint sessions reinforce our shared philosophy of Two Camps, One Purpose, while also streamlining procedures and aligning our practices. At the same time, we continue to celebrate and emphasize what makes each camp unique and meaningful in its own way.

Together, this year's AD staff bring an incredible 242 years of combined camp experience — a true testament to their commitment, leadership, and love for Hayo-Went-Ha Camps.

More Than a Camp: A Place to Grow, Belong, and Return To

Two stories of why international staff return...

Every summer, I find myself returning to Hayo-Went-Ha not out of habit, but out of love. This place is more than a camp, it's a second home. A place where I feel completely myself surrounded by nature, friends, and unforgettable experiences.

What draws me back year after year is the community. There's something special about the bonds formed at camp, whether it's singing around a campfire, paddling across a lake, or pushing through a challenging hike together. The friendships made here are deep and lasting, built on shared adventures and mutual respect.

HWH also helps me grow. It challenges me to lead, to listen and to step outside my comfort zone. Each summer I leave stronger, more confident and more connected to the world around me.

I return not just for the fun but for the feeling of belonging, growth, and joy that Hayo-Went-Ha gives me. It's where I discover who I am, again and again.

by Tristan Dougans

As my fourth year on staff at Arbutus, I look back on my first year and reflect on why I choose to come back every year. The first day I arrived in Traverse City I was picked up from the airport by a group of American staff members who had all known each other since they were Happy Hollow campers. This was incredibly daunting at first, but by the time I had got to camp I already felt accepted and excited for the summer ahead. Ever since that first day I knew I would always have a second home at camp. Hayo-Went-Ha Camps have taught me independence, patience, and more about myself than I could have hoped. The trips here at camp truly change everyone that is lucky enough to experience them!

by Sophie Brandon

Where are Our International Staff from This Year?

With 58% of our US based staff coming from Michigan, we still have another 10 states where our staff travel from to be here at HWH Camps for the summer.

A Story to Start the Summer: The Legend of Sleeping Bear

Thanks to a generous grant opportunity, we were able to send a copy of The Legend of Sleeping Bear by Kathy-jo Wargin to all of our campers this year. For many, it was their first introduction to the rich natural and cultural history of Northern Michigan — specifically, the story behind the iconic dunes that have become part of the Hayo-Went-Ha Camps experience for generations.

The book tells the tale of a mother bear and her two cubs escaping a forest fire. As they swim across Lake Michigan, the mother encourages her cubs with unwavering love and strength. The story behind what happens when they reach the far shore forms the heart of the Sleeping Bear Dunes legend and serves as a reminder of resilience, love, and the power of nature — all values we see reflected in our campers every summer.

To help bring the story to life, members of our full-time staff team recorded a special video reading of the book, which is available to watch online. It's a simple but meaningful way to share a piece of Michigan's story — and ours — with campers and families before they even arrive at camp.

Whether your own memories of Sleeping Bear include sand in your shoes or stories told on a trip, we hope this new tradition connects past and present campers to the land we're lucky to call home.

A Great Way to Start Homecoming at Camp

On June 15, after campers had checked in and settled into their cabins, we hosted our first-ever Homecoming gathering at camp. With over 16 alumni, parents, and friends in attendance, it was a meaningful way to kick off what we hope becomes a lasting tradition.

Guests spent time sharing stories from their own camp days, reflecting on what it felt like to drop off their campers that afternoon, and talking about the lasting impact camp has had on their families.

Thank you to everyone who joined us for this first Homecoming — we loved having you back at camp.

Mark your calendars for the next one: Sunday, July 13 at 4:00 p.m. We'll be gathering during the Second Session check-in and would love to see you there.

Hayo-Hikes Bring Alumni Together Coast to Coast

Our recent Hayo-Hikes in the DC area, California, and Colorado were a great success, thanks to the energy and leadership of Hadley and Casey Robinson, Mary Tobin, Mackenzie and Margo Dyer, and Meg Vo.

Alumni from across the decades, along with friends and family, came together to reconnect, make new connections, and spend a day outdoors — just like the good old camp days.

Thank you to everyone who laced up their boots and joined us. We loved seeing so many familiar faces and welcoming new ones.

More Hayo-Hikes are on the horizon, so stay tuned for upcoming dates and locations — we'd love to see you on the trail.

Help make a child's dreams come true this summer by giving today!

Summer Dreams and Equipment Drive Camp is Ready — But Not Every Child Could Afford to Come

At Hayo-Went-Ha Camps, we believe that every child deserves the chance to experience the power of camp. This year, we made a commitment that no camper would be turned away due to financial need — and thanks to your ongoing support, we've kept that promise.

Our $250,000 campership fund has been fully allocated. But just a week before camp began on Sunday, June 15, 12 more campers were still waiting. We had the space — and we said yes. These kids are now headed to camp, but that decision has placed us $50,000 over budget in our campership funds.

This decision wasn't made lightly. As our CEO John "JC" Carlson often reminds us, "We've never turned a child away from camp because they couldn't afford it — only when there wasn't space." With that in mind, we stood by our mission and opened the door.

Now, we're turning to our community once more to help fund that promise.

Matching Gifts Make Your Support Go Even Further

Thanks to our generous friends, your donation made double the impact with not one but three matching donors to add to the support:

1. The Cook Family supported our campaign by offering a $20,000 match.
2. The McWilliams/Piraino Fund are also matching all gifts to the campership campaign by matching $25,000.
3. And just last week, longtime camp friend Rick Block offered a $25,000 matching challenge to help us reach our stretch goal. We have already generated over $10,000 in support that will be matched.

These kids are packed, excited, and ready. With your help, they'll be paddling, hiking, building friendships, and growing into the confident, capable young people camp helps shape. Thank you for your continued care, your belief in camp, and your generous heart.
